

Medical Examinations for Workers engaged in Hazardous Occupations in Industrial Undertakings

Workers exposed to certain hazards in industrial undertakings are required to undergo statutory pre-employment and periodical medical examinations. Besides helping detection of early abnormalities in workers and prevention of occupational diseases, these examinations also verify the effectiveness of the existing preventive strategies.

Related publications can be obtained from :

Occupational Safety and Health Branch
Labour Department
15/F, Harbour Building, 38 Pier Road
Central, Hong Kong
Enquiries : 2852 4041

Apart from the statutory requirements, medical examinations are recommended as a good occupational health practice for workers exposed to certain hazards in industrial undertakings.

Occupational Safety and Health Branch
Labour Department
www.labour.gov.hk

