Quick Access to Information through the Web

In an era that emphasizes efficiency, a lot of structured information is disseminated through the use of the Internet. There are many websites that offer practical tips and advice to job seekers. Many of these websites provide updates on the latest job openings and placement agencies in your area. These websites can be accessed through the Internet or through search engines like Yahoo, Google, or Bing.

Labour Department’s Dedicated Webpage for Elderly Job Seekers

Labour Department’s Employment Reform Division (ERD) provides job seekers with the necessary information on different job hunting channels, employment support services, training, and welfare benefits that are available to them under the Employment Act and other rules and regulations. To access the Labour Department’s Employment Reform Division’s Dedicated Webpage, please click on the following link:

For Android: http://www.kdnk.gov.bn/android
For iOS: http://www.kdnk.gov.bn/ios

Other Employment Websites and Mobile Applications

There are many employment websites such as JobStreet.com.my and CareerBuilder Malaysia that offer job seekers a wide range of positions to explore. The “Elderly Friendly Employment Portal” provided by the Hong Kong Employment Bureau (ERB) is an example. ERB provides unemployed elderly workers with a central job platform that enables them to search for employment opportunities. A corresponding mobile application (Centre reverse mode) has also been developed for elderly jobseekers. The application can be downloaded:

For Android: http://www.kdnk.gov.bn/android
For iOS: http://www.kdnk.gov.bn/ios

Understanding the Market and Get the Pulse

Having worked in the same industry for a long time, you told the job market for a certain period of time. This is because job seekers who are knowledgeable, experienced, and well-connected in the industry can have a better chance of securing job opportunities. To stay updated on the latest trends and changes in the job market, keep in touch with the Labour Department’s Employment Reform Division (ERB) through the most current employment websites and job fairs. They can also make use of connections established in the Employment Reform Division’s Dedicated Webpage.

Labour Department’s Job Centre

A Special Centre is available at the Labour Department’s City 13 (Li Chi) Centres where elderly job seekers can browse through popular job resources, as well as personal and employment-related services. Job fairs are organized with various employers and job seekers who are interested in finding positions to facilitate job search and application by job seekers. There is also an Employment Reform Division (ERD) Mobile Job Centre providing job seekers with information on governmental and private-sector job opportunities, job attachment, and other programmes to assist them in finding employment. The Mobile Job Centre can be accessed through the Labour Department’s Employment Reform Division’s Dedicated Webpage.

Other Means of Collecting Employment Information

The Services of the Employment Reform Division are supported by various media, including newspapers, radio, television, and other media. The Division also includes various other programmes to assist elderly citizens who are at risk of losing their jobs due to retirement or unemployment. Job search assistance can be obtained from the Labour Department’s Employment Reform Division (ERB). Other means of employment information include centres where job seekers can find employment opportunities, career counseling, and other services.

For more information, please visit the EDA website at www.eda.gov.bn.
Change your Mindset and Have a New Start

New Expectations for New Career

Effectively manage your expectations on the time and location of job hunting. Remember that you are the context, not the candidate. Many people view job hunting as a linear process with explicit outcomes, such as securing employment. Others might have already been present in employment with informal networks and social interactions that can help in achieving your goals. It's important to be prepared for unexpected changes, and not to be too focused on the end result. Instead, focus on the journey and the learning opportunities along the way. Keep your options open and be prepared to adapt to the changes that may come in a year or two when you graduate. Remember to seek help and advise from others who have gone through similar situations.

Be Cautious and Beware of Employment Traps

Employment traps emerge from a lack of regular employment and dependence on a single job or group. Employers should be aware of these trends and develop ways to prevent them. One way to avoid falling into a trap is to ensure that employment is not a core part of your career development. Develop a diversified career strategy, and regularly monitor your progress to ensure you are not being exploited or overworked. If you feel that you are in a trap, seek advice from a career counselor or mentor to help you navigate your situation.

Other Useful Information for the Elderly and Middle-aged

The Labour Department's Employment Programme for the Elderly and Middle-aged provides benefits to encourage employment among elderly and middle-aged job seekers. The programme offers various benefits, such as assistance with job search and career development. It is important to be aware of the programme and how it can benefit you. You can contact the Labour Department for more information on how to apply and what benefits are available.

Dress up to Give a Good Impression

Don’t dress down or dress up to a high level of distraction. A well-dressed individual is more likely to be taken seriously. Employees are also more likely to be taken seriously if they dress in a professional manner. In addition, dressing professionally can improve your self-confidence and help you feel more comfortable in social situations.

Mandatory Provident Fund Scheme

The mandatory Provident Fund Scheme (MPF) has been introduced to provide retirement income for all employees in the industry. Under this scheme, all employees in the industry, including those employed on a casual or temporary basis, are required to have minimum savings through the scheme. The scheme is designed to ensure that employees have a minimum level of retirement income when they retire. It is important to be familiar with the scheme and how it can benefit you.

Useful Telephone Numbers, Address and Website

This list may vary depending on the region, and may not include all of the numbers mentioned in the section on "Mandatory Provident Fund Scheme." The list includes telephone numbers, addresses, and websites that may be useful for employees in the industry. It is important to have this information readily available and to use it as needed.

Employers’ Compensation Insurance Residential Scheme

Under the Employers’ Compensation Insurance Residential Scheme, employers are required to take out insurance to cover the cost of compensation for any employee who is injured or dies as a result of work. The scheme covers medical expenses, rehabilitation, and death benefits. It is important to be familiar with the scheme and how it can benefit you.

Labour Department's Employment Bureau

The Labour Department's Employment Bureau is a key resource for job seekers in the industry. It provides assistance with job search, career development, and other employment-related matters. You can contact the bureau for more information on how to apply and what services are available.

Labour Department’s Employment Service

The Labour Department’s Employment Service provides information on job vacancies and employment opportunities. You can search for job vacancies and apply for them through the service. It is important to be familiar with the service and how it can benefit you.

Labour Department’s Employment Service Website

The Labour Department’s Employment Service Website is an online platform that provides information on job vacancies and employment opportunities. You can search for job vacancies and apply for them through the website. It is important to be familiar with the website and how it can benefit you.

Labour Department’s Employment Service

The Labour Department’s Employment Service provides information on job vacancies and employment opportunities. You can search for job vacancies and apply for them through the service. It is important to be familiar with the service and how it can benefit you.

Labour Department’s Employment Service Website

The Labour Department’s Employment Service Website is an online platform that provides information on job vacancies and employment opportunities. You can search for job vacancies and apply for them through the website. It is important to be familiar with the website and how it can benefit you.