Racial Diversity Employment Programme

Providing customised employment support services to ethnic minority job seekers through a case management approach

Promoting awareness of multi-cultures, employability of the ethnic minorities and the development of inclusive workplaces

What is Racial Diversity Employment Programme (RDEP)?

RDEP is a programme launched by the Labour Department in collaboration with non-governmental organisations (NGOs) to provide one-stop employment support services for ethnic minority job seekers through a case management approach, so as to enhance their employability and support career development.

NGOs commissioned by the Labour Department will assign social workers to act as Case Managers of the ethnic minority participants and provide them with customised employment services comprising (a) initial screening and needs assessment, (b) pre-employment counselling, (c) employment assistance and job matching, (d) post-placement support, and (e) case review.

Participation in RDEP is free of charge.
