Chapter 7: Paternity Leave

Paternity Leave

A male employee is entitled to 5\(^1\) days’ paternity leave for each confinement of his spouse/partner if he –

1. is the father\(^2\) of a new-born child or a father-to-be;
2. has been employed under a continuous contract; and
3. has given the required notification to the employer.

Taking of Paternity Leave

● The employee must notify his employer of –

1. his intention to take paternity leave at least 3 months before the expected date of delivery of the child (exact date of leave not required at this stage); and
2. the date of his paternity leave before taking the leave\(^3\).

● If the employee fails to give the abovementioned 3 months’ advance notice to the employer, he must notify the employer of his date of paternity leave at least 5 days before that date.

● If the employer so requests, the employee must provide his employer with a written statement signed by him stating –

1. the name of the child’s mother;
2. the expected/actual date of delivery of the child; and
3. that he is the child’s father.

\(^1\) The number of paternity leave days is 3 days for each confinement of the spouse/partner of an eligible male employee if his child is born on or after 27 February 2015 but before 18 January 2019.

\(^2\) The employee is not required to be married to the mother of the new-born child for entitlement to paternity leave under the Employment Ordinance.

\(^3\) The law does not stipulate how advance such notification should be given.
The employee may take paternity leave at any time during the period from 4 weeks before the expected date of delivery of the child to 14 weeks beginning on the actual date of delivery of the child. The employee may take all 5 days of paternity leave in one go or on separate days.

Payment for Paternity Leave

A male employee is entitled to paternity leave pay if he –

1. has been employed under a continuous contract for not less than 40 weeks immediately before the day of paternity leave; and

2. has provided the required document to the employer within the following period (whichever period expires first) –

   (i) 12 months after the first day of paternity leave taken; or

   (ii) if he ceases to be employed, within 6 months after cessation of employment.

The daily rate of paternity leave pay is a sum equivalent to four-fifths of the average daily wages earned by an employee in the 12-month period preceding the day of paternity leave. If an employee takes more than one day of paternity leave consecutively, the daily rate of paternity leave pay is a sum equivalent to four-fifths of the average daily wages earned by the employee in the 12-month period preceding the first day of paternity leave. If an employee is employed for less than 12 months, the calculation shall be based on the shorter period.

4 If the child is born before 11 December 2020, it is up to 10 weeks beginning on the actual date of delivery of the child.
NOTE: In calculating the average daily wages, an employer has to exclude (i) the periods for which an employee is not paid his wages or full wages, including rest day, statutory holiday, annual leave, sickness day, paternity leave, sick leave due to work injuries or leave taken with the agreement of the employer, and any normal working day on which the employee is not provided by the employer with work; together with (ii) the sum paid to the employee for such periods. (see Appendix 1 for details)

The document to be provided by the employee

For birth in Hong Kong: the birth certificate of the child on which the employee’s name is entered as the child’s father.

For birth outside Hong Kong: the birth certificate of the child issued by the authorities of the place and on which the employee’s name is entered as the child’s father (or, if the authorities of the place do not issue birth certificates, any other document issued by the authorities that could reasonably be taken as proof that the employee is the child’s father).

NOTE: Samples of birth certificates issued by the authorities of some places outside Hong Kong are available on the webpages of the Labour Department.

If the child is born dead or dies after birth and no birth certificate has been issued in respect of the child:

- The employee must produce a medical certificate\(^5\) certifying the delivery of the child.

- If required by the employer, the employee must also provide a written statement signed by him stating that –
  1. he is the father of the child delivered by the woman named in the medical certificate; and
  2. the child is born dead or dies after birth, whichever is appropriate.

\(^5\) For birth outside Hong Kong, the employee must provide a medical certificate or any other document issued by the authorities of the place that could reasonably be taken as proof of the delivery of the child.

Other Points to Note

Employers and employees are advised to observe their obligations under the Personal Data (Privacy) Ordinance (Cap. 486) in the disclosure and use of personal data of the mother of the employee’s child for the purpose of granting or claiming paternity leave and paternity leave pay. Employers may wish to remind their employees to obtain the consent of the child’s mother before disclosing her personal data. In case of queries, employers and employees may wish to consult the Office of the Privacy Commissioner for Personal Data.

Every employer must at all times keep a record setting out the wage and employment history of each employee covering the period of his employment during the preceding 12 months. Among others, the record must include particulars of the period(s) of paternity leave that the employee has taken together with details of payments made in respect of such period(s), if applicable.
